THE REAL ISSUE.

The fact that NICOLL is a Democrat, and is supported by thousands of the best Democrats in the city, is enough to prove that the contest over the District-Attorneyship is not a political one.

Every intelligent citizen knows that politics is not involved, except as politicians assume to dictate to the people who they shall not have in an office charged with no political responsibility but intrusted with the] prosecution of public offenders, To lug the "tariff," or the "National Treasury," or the "National Democracy" into this fight for honest local government, is to attempt to throw sand in the eyes of the people.

The sole question is, shall New York approve or condemn the vigorous prosecution of bribe-givers or bribe-takers? If the people permit a party appeal to range them on the side of the Boodlers, they deserve to be plundered.

ABOUT OVER.

The Flopper has very wisely abandoned its own word-eating share in the District-Attorney contest, saying: "That campaign is over."

Yes, the Tween bombshell about finished it. All that is left is the formality of the

The people have made up their minds to elect the man who, as the Herald said, "made New York too hot for Boodlers."

SHALL THE MACHINES BULE?

It is natural that big office-holders should support the little office-holders. The little office-holders make the big office-holders. Bervants are expected to sneeze when their masters take snuff.

But have the people nothing to say in the matter? Because office-holding candidates look to a party machine to secure for them delegates for a renomination, shall the voters of New York therefore elect an unfit man as District-Attorney? The managers of the political machines know that they must work together or be smashed separately. Therefore they "indorse" each other.

The question before the voters is: Shall the machines rule or the people govern? The answer has been furnished by Mr. HEWITT "Smash the machines!"

THE "FRIEND" OF TWEED.

FELLOWS as an explainer: "Mr. Tween was an old friend of mine and had helped me out before. He lent me the money because he was a friend of mine, that is all."

And "that" is enough. It is more than enough to conclusively demonstrate FEL Lows's unfitness for any public office.

The "friend" of Tween is the friend of the Boodlers to-day. The leopard has not changed his spots.

Do the People want the money-soliciting "friend" of Tween for District-Attorney?

PIGHTING THE OLD FIGHT.

Behind FELLows with sinister leer looms

the shade of Boss Tween. Behind NICOLL stands TILDEN "in the columns of reform and good government."

The old fight is on. As before some honest but mistaken men are ranged on the wrong side through the force of party slavery, but, as before, they will live to re-

As before, the old cry of "abuse" is raised. But, as before, it is the "abuse" of scandalous and admitted facts.

PECKHAM AND OLNEY.

The two able lawyers, honest men and stauch Democrats whom Gov. CLEVELAND appointed District-Attorney over Assistant FELLOWS'S head-WHEELER H. PECKHAM and Peter B. Olney-are both warm supporters of Mr. NICOLL.

Both these gentlemen know the require. ments and the temptations of the District-Attorney's office. Both know Nicoll and Fel-Lows well. Both are disinterestedly seeking the welfare of the city and the honor of the Democratic party. Both, therefore, were amazed and indignant at the knifing of NICOLL and the preferment of FELLows by the County Democracy Bosses. And both stand upon their convictions of duty instead of with the Bosses. President CLEVELAND will help nobody and injure himself by his stultifying intermeddling in this local contest.

To Louis F. Post: You have spoken in strong and ringing words of the necessity of rebuking boodleism and overthrowing the corrupt machine influences. Why will you neglect your golden opportunity to put in practice what you speak in theory?

Your ability and good intent is not questioned. But in this fight NICOLL stands in the breach. It was he who convicted SHARP, who was "knifed" by Boodling Bosses and Bossing Boodlers, who in this juncture is the exponent of "No quarter to public thieves." The issue is on his retention or rejection.

The result lies between NICOLL and FEL-Lows. Nicoll's election is inevitable, but you can render it doubly emphatic. Your supporters are opposed to Fellows. The defeat of Boodleism is their earnest purpose. Then why divide the opposition to Fellows by remaining in the field?

Your party can make a good mark on its other candidates. Your withdrawal in Mr. NICOLL'S favor would prove its sincerity for the public welfare, and gain for you an unstinted measure of honor.

Don't miss your opportunity, Mr. Post.

THE OFFICE SEEKS THE MAN.

The stabber of one Presidential candidate and the besmircher of another has the sublime impudence to talk of the "obligation of a man who goes before a convention and asks for a nomination."

Mr. Nicoll never went before a conven tion, nor in any other way asked a nom instion.

Mr. MARTINE gave it as the reason why Mr. NICOLL was not nominated, that he did not ask to be. Mayor HEWITT says that if Nic-OLL had told " me " that he wanted the office.

I " would have favored him. Do the people wish to indorse the theory that a man must beg for an office or buy it in order to be nominated? Shall the people have no right to an honest man's services unless the Bosses see fit to nominate him?

This is a case where the office seeks the

BAVE BROADWAY.

Wake up, gentlemen, if you want to save Broadway from disfigurement by an "L" system. In Judge Dononur's eleventh-hour appointment of a commission to estimate the amount of compensation due the city the Metropolitan Transit Company has taken what may prove to be a big stride towards the gobbling of our magnificent thoroughfare.

The editor of the London Sportsman, acting under the request of the American correspondent of that paper, has requested the Comptroller of Customs to pass the Sullivan belt, emblematic of the championship of the world, free of all duty. After consideration, the Comptroller of Customs has stated that he will demand a duty of It shiftings for every ounce the belt weighs. Much indignation is expressed by all the sporting men of this country at the comptroller's action, and if he lossists that a duty must be paid on the belt that valuable trophy will be returned immediately to Boston by the steamer Cephalonia, which sails in a week.

The gold in the Sullivan belt weights 3,000 ED. A. PERRY.

The gold in the Sullivan belt weighs 3,000 cwt., or aboutone hundred and fifty ounces. Beside this there is some weight in the few less than a hundred diamonds with which the belt is set. If the Comptroller of Customs insists on collecting the duty Champion Sullivan would be obliged to pay no less than $600 for the privilege of taking his belt into England. This duty seems an unreasonable one and will never be paid.

The terms under which he received it compel him to keep it in his possession while alive. At his death it falls to his heir, and it never can be disposed of while he has a rela-But opposition to this and similar schemes can be permanently effective only when supplemented with some more acceptable plan. The alternative to the sacrifice of Broadway is the speedy construction of an underground or viaduct road. The consensus of expert opinion favors the former.

Then hurry up the underground road, and ave Broadway.

IT IS NOT TOO LATE.

"Oh! it's too late," is the chorus from POWER, FITZGERALD and the other officeholders touching the fatal disclosures of the pecuniary relations of Fellows and Boss

It is not too late. This serious charge, backed by documentary evidence, is produced four days before election, in a short campaign. FELLows himself admits that he borrowed the money of Tween.

THE REAL REASON.

PETER B. OLNEY, the able lawyer and sound Democrat whom Gov. CLEVELAND appointed to be District-Attorney over the head of Assistant JOHN R. FELLOWS, certifies to Mr. NICOLL's superior fitness for the office.

The Tween check and the "welcher's" plea render further argument on this point needless. But Mr. OLNEY also says that he has 'vet to see stated any good or substantial eason why Mr. NICOLL should not have received the nomination of the United Democracy." Mr. OLNEY has not seen it because there was and is no such reason.

The real reason was because Boss Power would not permit it. And he would not permit it because NICOLL had "made New York too hot for Boodlers." The election will make the city at once too hot for Boodlers and too cold for Bosses.

Nelson Morris, of the Chicago Stockyards, is at the Gilsey House. Capt. W. S. Everett, of Atlanta, Ga., is staying at the Grand Central. Among the explanations of Col. Fellows which do not explain is his endeavor to Ex-Congressman Latimore Small, of York, Pa., is one of the Albemarie's guests. answer the charge of "welching" by the statement that he afterwards " settled " the claim. But the fact remains that he gambled, lost and pleaded "the baby act." He says he had reason to think he was defrauded. But this does not appear in his plea as defendant. New York will set no gambler to the presecution of gamblers.

You are right, Mr. CLEVELAND. The people of New York are "quite competent to manage their affairs." If they were not, they would hardly take your advice to elect a man whom you have five times refused to appoint FELLOWS to Tween: "Excuse this seeming persistence," The corrupt Boss excused it, but the People will not.

"This is only the beginning of something greater. It would be impossible now that we have commenced for either Mr. Booth or myself to draw out, and the probability is that the relation which is existing between us will be continued for the rest of our natural lives, until one of us is gone. The relationship is pleasant and profitable to both of us, and it is fitting that we should go on. We entered on our careers at nearly the same period and have worked together. Our aspirations and sympathies are similar. period and have worked together. Our aspirations and sympathies are similar. To Mr. Booth is due in a large measure the first brilliant production and the presentation of the legitimate drama. Much of my own inspirations I owe to him. We shall continue together, therefore, and I look upon this as the commencement of a great work for both of us. We shall devote ourselves to the highest production and best from the drama, and in production and the company aim to give the Shakespearian and other classical plays as near perfection as can be attained." From an intimate friend of the tragedian, it was learned that their plan includes securing a theatre in New York which shall be to the metropolis what the Irving Lyceum is to London. It will be devoted to legitimate productions, and the stars will manage it and devote themselves mainly to it, only making devote themselves mainly to it, only making occasional tours. Manager Chase is now looking for a theatre in New York. In case one cannot be secured, a new one will be built within two years.

The upper jaw has three long prongs at the extreme tip. The rest of the upper teeth are very fine and small. It is packed in ice at the rooms of the American Fish Bureau, and will be forwarded to the Smithsonian Institution at Washington.

MONTREAL, Nov. 5 .- The relations between the legal tribunals of Ontario and Quebec are becoming more strained every day. The celebrated Shepherd case, which formed a precedent for not indorsing McGarigle's arrest, and has since been used in the Bethune case, seems to have clogged up the wheels of justice so badly that the Quebec authorities are giving the matter up and letting the province ol Ontario constitute itself as an asylum for criminals from this Province.

The great success of last night's meeting was the talk of to-day at the United Labor Party's headquarters, and it was considered an indication of victory next Tuesday.

Untiring Henry George was early on hand at the rooms at 918 Broadway, assisting Secretary O'Neill and his corps of clerks in putting the finishing touches on the work so actively carried on. "The Little Giant," as some choose to call the apostle of the landtax doctrine, showed evidences of weariness in his countenance, and his tired eyes gave evidence of the large amount of work that he has so vigorously and so earnestly performed during the past five or six weeks. He was more confident than ever of success. "I am even more hopeful of victory than I

Mr. Chamberlain will undoubtedly receive a cordial welcome in this country, although much has been said about his presence being undesirable. Personally, he is one of the most courteous and entertaining men it is possible to meet, and he carries this charm of manner with him to the platform. Mr. Chamberlain is a Birmingham man, and perhaps that is why he is sometimes called provincial. The Birmingham people look upon him as a god, and his speeches at the Town Hall have drawn larger crowds than any other speaker has been known to attract there. Mr. Chamberlain is above the middle height, has iron-gray hair and clearly cut features. He wears glasses as a rule.

He said at Queenstown that no amount of hostile criticism would affect him in the performance of his duties here. He is tolerably accustomed to hostile criticism anyway. He is very confident that his mission will be successful, and has declared that no one was more desirous of maintaining good relations between England and America than he.

GIVING UP THE FIGHT.

The struggle of the United Brassworkers to enforce the 55-hour rule has resulted in their defeat, mainly, it is said, through lack of support from the Knights of Labor. Small forces of A hale old couple of Lexington, Ill. are John the Knights of Labor. Small forces of the men locked out from Archer, Pancoast & Co.'s F. McClewee's, Travis & Murray's and several other smaller shops returned to work this morning on the old terms of fifty-nine hours a week. The remainder of the locked-out hands will resume work on Monday. Nine shops in all were involved. The 250 hands of the manufactory of Oxley, Giddings & Enos are still on strike for the fifty-five hour rule, and there is no prospect of an early settlement, the men declaring that they will not return to work until the firm grants the demand.

DOINGS OF PLAYERS AND PLANS PROPOSED BY MANAGERS.

An Amusing Incident Which Was Not on the Programme at the Lyceum-Abbey to Bring the Meiningen Company to America Next Year-A Stage-Struck Girl Gets Her Wish-Mantell's Luck at Newark.

> Y a bit of small hero. ism Miss Dillon carried out her scene as usual and furnished amusement not on the programmes during the performance of "The Wife" at the Lyceum Theatre on Thursday night. Miss Dillon takes particular pride in the scene in which she climbs a which she climbs a tree with Mr. Dickson and chatting prettily, eats a real apple with eats a real apple with him. In climbing the tree on this occasion. she was too enthusiastic, for the two real apples fell to the ground, though Miss Dillon did not notice that. Thomas Gossman, the property man, standing at the wings, saw the mishap, but would do nothing. When the cue came for Miss Dillon to snatch an apple and take a big bite from it, she seized one of the property apples, which are made of thin painted papier mache filled with sawdust. Miss Dillon did not look at it, but took the hog bite, penetrating to the sawdust, which fell over the front of her dress. She made a wry face and the audience tittered. Miss Dillon was furious, as she is extremely fond of this scene and practiced climbing up the tree for a long time before the production of the piece. But her cup of anguish was not yet full. Thomas Gossman was in a funny mood. When Miss Dillon came off the stage yet full. Thomas Gossman was in a funny mood. When Miss Dillon came off the stage he informed her that the paint on the property apples was deadly poison. Even Manager Frohman could not resist the temptation of tessing the poor little lady. He declared he would send for a doctor, and announced that Miss Dillon's underlady should be held in readiness. When the actress was on the verge of hysterics, the gentlemen condesendingly informed her that they were only joking. "Oh, I knew it," she said, fibbing gently, "But even if the apple had been poison, I'd have eaten it rather than miss that scene.

Henry E. Abbey has made arrangements to bring the entire Meiningen Company to this country next year. It will be remembered that a year ago an effort was made to secure this attraction for the United States by a syndicate represented by Wesley Sisson. Sufficient money was advanced to that gentleman to permit of him to go to Europe to treat with the company. He was unable to make arrangements with them, owing to some financial difficulties. The subscription which was being made here did not promise very satisfactory results. This is an important undertaking for Mr. Abbey. He will import an entire shipload of scenery and properties. The Meiningen Company will open in New York at the Star Theatre, and play in the principal cities only. This enterprise, with Mary Anderson and Coquelin, also in the United States, and Patti and Bernhardt abroad, will give Mr. Abbey plenty of work. plenty of work.

Miss Seligman, who has been engaged to play the part of Ustane in "She," is related to the wealthy Seligmans of this city, and the announcement of her engagement has caused much talk. For the last two years she has been making an effort to appear in public. Miss Seligman appeared in a performance of "Iolanthe," given for charitable purposes at the Academy of Music sometime ago, and she has been very persistent in her attempts to secure an engagement. Ustane in "She" is the young girl who falls in love with Leo and who is wedded to him by a kiss, according to the custom of the Amhaggers.

Robert Mantell is playing a very successful engagement with "Monbars" in Newalk. This play is an adaption from the French, Monbars is the name of the hero. Augustus Pitou, Mantell's energetic manager, is very enthusiastic about the prospects.
